Given to God, in Community, for the Service of Those who are Poor.
My Friends in Christ,

This issue, I write to you about “A Family Trait.”

More than two million women and men identify themselves as members of the Vincentian Family, as relatives, as it were, of St. Louise de Marillac and St. Vincent de Paul. As with every family, this one too has its characteristic traits. Other people recognize who is in the clan by these attributes.

Here are two Daughters’ views about the identifying markers or traits they see as those true to Daughter of Charity members of the Family.

“In many people’s eyes, Daughters are recognized by their easy direct relationships. This lets them proceed directly to their goal without any complications.” (Sister Anne Duzan, D.C.). “A Daughter of Charity can be recognized by a certain simplicity of bearing and language which allows her to be at ease everywhere, without seeking either to attract attention or remain unnoticed.” (Sister Suzanne Guillemin, D.C.).

Straightforward, uncomplicated, direct, genuine, open, transparent — St. Vincent would have used the word “simplicity” to summarize these qualities. He said it was one of God’s own attributes and therefore good in itself. But he also insisted that simplicity was an essential tool for gaining the trust of people who were poor. From their hard knocks experience of life, they were particularly perceptive at seeing through any falsity or spin. These were the ones Vincent tagged as having “the true religion,” that is, having honesty and openness before their Lord.

Over the years, people in the Vincentian stream have worked to assimilate this key trait. Vincent went so far as to call it “my gospel” — not a bad recommendation for this core ingredient in the Vincentian Family genetic pool.

In Vincent and Louise,

Father Tom McKenna, C.M.
Director

Dear Friends,

“Go then courageously, advancing moment by moment on the path on which God has placed you in order to reach Him.”

(St. Louise de Marillac, L.360b, February 8, 1653. Spiritual Writings, page 412)

As we approach our second anniversary as the Province of St. Louise, I am mindful of how God has led us down many different paths to assist our brothers and sisters living in poverty. It has been the courage and conviction of so many Daughters of Charity and our lay collaborators that has impelled us to embrace ministries that allow our Vincentian spirit to touch those who are poor.

In this issue, you will read about health care clinics that provide services in both urban and rural areas of our province. The ministries in Arkansas, Texas, and Louisiana include components that touch the physical, spiritual, and emotional well-being of those who seek the path to wholeness. For more than 50 years, the journey of the young women who have attended Elizabeth Seton High School in Bladensburg, Maryland, has not only included an excellent academic preparation but also a solid moral and spiritual education based on Vincentian values. The young adults who participate in the Vincentian Mission Corps and Vincentian Lay Missionaries find themselves on a road that leads them to those who are living in poverty in the United States as well as in Ethiopia and Kenya.

The International Project Services takes a very different route in helping our Sisters to create systemic change in many of the poorest places on our globe. Since beginning operation in 2006, more than 540 projects have been funded in 56 developing countries where the Daughters are serving.

I continue to ask for your prayers of gratitude for the many ways God has drawn us to Himself through our service of our brothers and sisters who are poor. As the Easter season ends, we are filled with the joy of Pentecost. Pentecost Sunday was very significant to St. Louise de Marillac because it was on that day that she had a spiritual experience which was the turning point in her life. She called it her “Lumiere” or “Light.” St. Louise felt God was telling her to remain steadfast in the care of her husband and son and that a day would come when she would make vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience. Let us ask the Paraclete to pour out that same light on us so we remain faithful in God’s service.

Blessings!

Daughters Care for the Health of Many in Many Locations

The Daughters remain steadfast in their care of those who are ill or injured. When the Daughters first were missioned from Emmitsburg, MD, in the 1800s, to Milwaukee and St. Louis, their primary ministry was care of the sick and injured. During the Civil War, the Spanish American War, and World War I, Daughters nursed the wounded. Influenza and Cholera epidemics were met head on by the Sisters. In Carville, LA, Daughters cared for those affected by Hansen’s Disease (Leprosy); several Sisters worked toward its cure. Today, the Daughters serve in some acute care hospitals but increasingly in primary care clinics.

The clinics in El Paso, San Antonio, New Orleans, and Arkansas are collectively known as the Community Health Ministries because they are not affiliated with local Ascension Health hospitals. In each of these areas, the predecessor of Ascension Health—the Daughters of Charity West Central Region—established one or more primary care clinics in geographic areas where patients have little affordable access to health care. The clinics, which provide dental and behavioral health services, in addition to medical care, operate as neighborhood centers. Some of the sites offer social services and one has extensive child development services.

The Community Health Ministries’ clinics serve nearly 50,000 people a year and have nine Daughters ministering in them (1 Medical Doctor; 2 Registered Nurses; 2 Social Workers; 2 Licensed Professional Counselors; 3 Mission Integration Directors) plus a Daughter who oversees operations.

In the next issue of Faith Afire, we will look more closely at the Sisters who minister in clinics in Washington, DC, Nashville, Birmingham, and St. Louis.
“Daughters of Charity International Project Services (IPS) is a ministry that responds to the needs of those who are poor as identified by our Sisters working in impoverished countries," explains Sister Felicia Mazzola, D.C., Executive Director of IPS since its inception in 2004. "As we strive to facilitate funding and resources to help the work of our Sisters in these countries, IPS functions as a service ministry.”

"We should assist the poor in every way…” (St. Vincent de Paul)

The projects shared with IPS by the Sisters are tremendously diverse. Projects may include immediate needs, as well as visionary components for long-range impact and sustainability toward systemic change. For example, the HIV/AIDS program in sub-Saharan Africa known as DREAM (drug resource enhancement against AIDS and malnutrition), medically and holistically treats those affected by HIV/AIDS, but also educates to end discrimination and to prevent the spread of the disease, particularly to the unborn children of HIV-positive women.

In response to the escalating problem of human trafficking in Bogota, Colombia, the Sisters are working on a comprehensive program that includes awareness and education, along with prevention of the crime throughout 39 communities. In addition to reaching parents, teachers and the community at large, the direct program beneficiaries are youth who are often the target of many forms of human trafficking like child labor exploitation, forced marriages, begging, and child sex and pornography.

Varied and often multifaceted, IPS projects reach some of the most vulnerable populations, like women, children, the elderly, and those with disabilities. Some concentrate on the building blocks of good health, including nutrition, clean water and sanitation. Other projects focus on self-sufficiency strategies that involve training, skills development, and education. The Daughters of Charity ministries in these impoverished countries address myriad social, medical, educational and pastoral needs. A few of the hundreds of IPS projects are featured.

“…and do it both by ourselves and by enlisting the help of others.” (St. Vincent de Paul)

The Daughters of Charity encourage the local people to be initiators and co-creators of their own transformation. Together, they collaborate with agencies and organizations within their countries, tackling the root causes of poverty and injustice, and striving to achieve sustainable changes.

As a service organization, IPS links two worlds: connecting those interested in helping to eradicate the inhumane conditions of global poverty with the needs of people living in resource-poor countries. Since the beginning of operations in 2006, IPS has partnered with numerous caring individuals, foundations, corporate sponsors, schools and other organizations to facilitate support for 540 projects submitted by Daughters of Charity living and working in 56 developing countries.

Please go to Daughters of Charity International Project Services’ new interactive website at www.daughtersips.org to learn more about the Sisters’ work in the developing world, read updates about IPS projects, and find out how you can help the Sisters in their mission. Two Mission Programs Welcome Lay Volunteers

The Vincentian Lay Missionaries (VLM) and the Vincentian Mission Corps (VMC) provide opportunities for young adults to partner with the Daughters of Charity and Vincentian Priests and Brothers in their ministries to those living in poverty in both Africa and St. Louis. “These two programs have strong components of service, community, reflection, prayer, and simple living that allow these young men and women to embrace the Vincentian charism and to live it in a meaningful way in 2013,” explained Sister Mary Beth Kubera, Provincial Councillor, who oversees the programs.

The VLM, 21-35 year olds, spend five weeks of their summer serving as missionaries in Ethiopia or Kenya. The program was founded in 2005 as a response to the Inter-Assemblies Document of the General Assembly which called the Daughters of Charity to share their spirit with those who were young, to collaborate with others who embraced Vincentian values, and to reach out to those who were most abandoned. Since 2005, 85 VLM have served in 7 different sites: Bahir Dar and Jimma, Ethiopia; and, Thigio, Nairobi, Kio, Kitale, and Chepnyal, Kenya.

VLM come from all walks of life. They are students, teachers, accountants, social workers, school principals, lawyers, doctors, and nurses. VLM are passionate about creating systemic change the Vincentian way: by responding to the needs of people they serve and by walking hand-in-hand with those who live in poverty.

The ministry of the VLM varies by site, but typically involves working with children as teachers, camp directors, or retreat facilitators. However, the ministry of VLM changes in response to the needs of the Daughters of Charity and the local community members living at each site.

VLM is currently preparing 15 missionaries to travel to Ethiopia and Kenya this summer. Please keep them in your prayers as they go forth to serve in the spirit of St. Vincent and St. Louise!

VMC (a merger of the Gateway Vincentian Volunteers and Vincentian Service Corps) is co-sponsored by the Daughters of Charity Province of St. Louise and the Congregation of the Mission Western Province. The mission of the Vincentian Mission Corps is to provide young adults with an experience of living in community and working with the poor in the spirit of St. Vincent de Paul and St. Louise de Marillac. The goal is that these young adults, as they respond to the call of the Gospel by working, praying, and living in the Vincentian spirit, will develop a consuming commitment to improving the lives of the poor and marginalized in our society.

In the 2012-2013 VMC community, there are 15 VMC volunteers, 12 women and 3 men, who are a part of the program. The VMC members truly live out the values outlined in the covenant they created as a group this fall: “Through our commitment to social justice, to our community, and to our faith, we hope to be shaped into more informed, thoughtful, and ethical persons.”

Senior Sisters throughout the Province of St. Louise: Celebrating Wisdom, Age, and Grace

There is an appointed time for everything, and a time for every affair under the heavens.

Ecclesiastes 3:1

The residences where the aged and infirm Daughters of Charity reside are truly the Powerhouses of Prayer supporting every Sister and every mission throughout the Province of St. Louise. These Sisters live daily in peace and serenity, their limitations of age and health as a form of service. C. 35 b

Each of these sisters is formally commissioned to pray for the Sisters and the works of a specific local mission in the Province. In every issue of Faith Afire, we will introduce you to Daughters who reside in one of the Senior Sister Residences throughout the Province. This issue, we highlight a few Sisters who live at Villa St. Michael in Emmitsburg, MD.

Sister Maureen Delahunt

“I began my ministry as a Psychiatric Nurse. This was an excellent preparation for pastoral care when I entered that ministry. I became a Certified Chaplain and enjoyed this ministry until my retirement. My ministry now is prayer and enjoying the fullness of Community life.”

Sister Maureen serves in the Ministry of Prayer; her assignment is St. Agnes House, Baltimore, MD.

Sister Jane Frances Fairley

“I am a retired Nurse born and bred in Baltimore County, MD. I entered the Daughters of Charity after my nurses’ training under the Sisters of Mercy and completed my training in operating room techniques at Boston College. For 66 years, I had a variety of duties in healthcare. In addition to the operating room, I was a Director of Nursing and served in maternity and geriatric nursing. My final duty was as a Parish Nurse. My retirement began August 18, 2006. Retirement? We laugh. Our days can be very active with prayer, Mass outings, visits to our infirm sisters. At night, I can say, “Thank you God for this day and these years in Your service.”

Sister Jane Frances serves in the Ministry of Prayer; her assignment is St. Joseph’s House, Martinsburg, WV.

Sister Francis Marie Lanasa

“I was born and raised in St. Dominic’s Parish in Baltimore and graduated from Seton High School. After graduation, I worked for five years. The job enabled me to help my parents since five of my brothers were serving in the military. In January of 1946, I entered the Daughters of Charity. While I was a Teacher for almost 40 years, I also spent several years in child care at Drew Hill near Philadelphia. At Oneida, NY, I worked in a parish. After my last teaching assignment, I served at the National Shrine to St. Elizabeth Ann Seton and in the Villa Gift Shop. I have been at Villa St. Michael for almost 11 years and have had a very happy life.”

Sister Francis Marie serves in the Ministry of Prayer; her assignment is Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament, Bayside, NY.

Sister Edith Stricker

“I entered the Community in 1936 and served 40 years in education. I had hoped to serve on a foreign mission, but that choice never came. My first mission was Our Lady of Victory in Portsmouth, VA, a school for African American children. After so many years in school, I served as a Parish Minister, visiting the sick, and as a Director of Religious Education. Since 1994 I have been at the Villa: God’s spoiled child or God’s Vagabond Lover. That’s how I see myself today!”

Sister Edith serves in the Ministry of Prayer; her assignment is St. Joseph’s House, Martinsburg, WV.
Confident, creative, compassionate, empowered to lead, to collaborate, and to serve in the spirit of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, St. Vincent de Paul, and St. Louise de Marillac is the vision held by the Elizabeth Seton High School community for the young women attending the school today. Though the words may reflect the nuances of today’s culture, the essential hopes are much the same as those who began the school in 1959.

Elizabeth Seton High School, located just three miles outside of Washington, DC, was founded by the Daughters of Charity as a response to a request from outside of Washington, DC, was founded by the Daughters of Charity as a response to a request from St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, who began the school in 1959.

During its history, the school has continually shaped its curriculum and program to meet changing educational competencies. Many graduates remember the days of typing and shorthand that led them to formidable jobs in business and government. Others reminisce about their days of sewing and cooking in home economics classes.

"Today, the school’s mission is to engage the young women in a challenging, college-preparatory program," explains Sister Ellen Marie Hagar, President. "The high school boasts of its 100 percent college acceptance rate. Likewise, the school prepares students to live and work in today’s highly technological world. This past year, the school initiated its Women in Engineering Program entitled LEAD (Learning Engineering and Design).

This year, the school celebrates the 50th anniversary of its first graduating class. As the graduates return, they marvel at the many changes that “were nothing like when we went to school here.” A weight room for exercising, an engineering lab, and an acoustically treated music room are all marks of the school moving with the times. Many of these changes occurred under the leadership of Sister Virginia Ann Brooks, when the school added a beautiful fine arts center and gymnasium to the campus. (They may be slightly biased, but the students and faculty claim the gym as the best for women in the Washington Catholic Athletic Conference.)

Indeed, much has changed at Seton, but there are two invaluable constants that distinguish its service: the core values of academic excellence, creativity, integrity, respect, service to others, and unity that pervade the entire school and the commitment of the Daughters of Charity.

In even the briefest conversation with alumnae of the school, the names of several Daughters of Charity will surface because of their service to Seton. Women like Sisters Gertrude Matthews, (first principal), Jerome Nessell, Claire Marie Angermaier, Marian Hagner, Vincentian Goeb, Mary Ellen Schwartz, Winifred McKay, Rita Bozel, Margaretie Butler, Mary Augusta Von Drehle, James Regina Rankin, and Sheila O’Friel are just a few of the many Daughters who have left an impressive legacy to Seton.

The privilege of having Sisters in direct ministry at Seton continues to echo today as prospective parents ask, “You still have Sisters?” Today the school is blessed to have the faithful commitment of Sisters Maria Cincotta, Catherine France, Ellen Marie Hagar, Charles Legg, Dorothy Lyons, Lani Manseau, and Clara Pedro. Through their ministry, families are assisted, individuals are attended to, and all are inspired to service. The Sisters, themselves, are grateful for the incredible devotion of the staff. Together, they form a community of parents, students, alumnae and friends, dedicated to the continual exchange of “the light to know and the grace to do.”
